

Please do not destroy the do not call law. I work at home in a job that requires both concentration and my availability to clients who phone. Breaking my concentration only to hear a telemarketer on the other end of the line is aggravating to say the least. If nothing else, telemarketers should be required to be identified with a specific "telemarketing" number.